NASA Aerospace Technology's Dr. Jeremiah Creedon to retire

Dr. Jeremiah F. Creedon, associate administrator for NASA's Office of Aerospace Technology, will retire from the Agency effective July 3. Creedon has been with NASA for 40 years and is a former director of Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va. He will join the faculty at Old Dominion University in Norfolk, Va. "Jerry's retirement is a true loss of talent and continuity for NASA," said NASA Administrator Sean O'Keefe. "His insight, candor, management and leadership skills have helped NASA considerably. He has been a forward-looking leader."
